INTRODUCTION

Individuals often fail in negotiations because they have had no foundation in negotiation skills.

We are negotiating almost all the time. Whether with business partners, clients, suppliers, colleagues or even family members, the success of our outcomes depends entirely on our understanding of the negotiation and communication process.

When engaged in negotiations where your skill as a negotiator may prevent losses, increase gains or enhance circumstances for you or your organisation, it is imperative that you invest in your capability to:

- Prepare effectively
- Understand the needs & interests of all parties involved
- Conclude better agreements through creativity
- Identify potential barriers or hindrances to the engagement
- Adopt a collaborative approach to ensuring trust, rapport and long term gains

This programme will equip participants with vital skills to help in those processes.

The course material is based on sound psychological approaches to negotiation, which include an understanding of personality, motivation and intelligence.
